PM announces new chief of defence staff

Prime Minister Stephen Harper announced August 27 Lieutenant-General Thomas J. Lawson, currently deputy commander of the North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD), will be Canada's next chief of the defence staff, and promoted to general.

"Lieutenant-General Lawson is the right leader for the Canadian Armed Forces and will bring a clear vision and strong values to the role," said Harper. "His experience, team-building skills and collaborative approach will help position the Canadian Armed Forces for the future."

Following his graduation from the Royal Military College in 1979, Lawson's career in the Royal Canadian Air Force included postings to Baden, Germany; Montgomery, Alabama; and Cold Lake. In 1998, he was appointed commanding officer of 412 Squadron, and later took charge of career management for the Air Force. Promoted to colonel in 2003, Lawson held various positions with the Air Force before joining the Canadian Forces Transformation Team in 2005 and leading the establishment of the Strategic Joint Staff. In 2006, he completed a year in command of Canadian Forces Base Trenton before being promoted to Brigadier-General in 2007 and appointed commandant of the Royal Military College. In 2009, he was promoted to major-general and became assistant chief of the air staff. Lawson assumed his current position as deputy commander of NORAD in July 2011.

Minister of National Defence Peter MacKay said "the calibre of our personnel is world-

Turtle tracking

Sara Keddy,

The smell of turtles along the riverbank is like nectar to a bee for these two sniffin' dogs.

The section of Zeke's Brook from 14 Wing Greenwood's main gate west to the Annapolis River was the scene of a wood turtle hunting trip by researchers and volunteers with the Clean Annapolis River Project August 23 and 24.

"These turtles - more than any other species we've tracked - the dogs like their smell," says Simon Gadbois, a Dalhousie University faculty member in the psychology and neuroscience department.

"We find a turtle in the field, we'll take a sample - sometimes they'll pee, and we can freeze a cotton ball to use for training or sometimes in the field and let them find it, so we end a day on a good note."

Gadbois, two dogs - Zila and Flynn (both SPCA rescues now trained to track wood turtles, ribbon snakes and coyotes), and several Dal research students joined Carolyn Hann from CARP for a day along Zeke's Brook. The wood turtle survey is a province-wide effort by various research and environmental groups.

"This is CARP's first year doing the project, Hann said. The group is following up on a survey the provincial Department of Natural Resources did between 2005 and 2008 - one wood turtle was found in Zeke's Brook then, and Hann is wondering if it is still around.

"We want to see their movements, where they are, what habitats they are in, the size of the population - the wood turtles are a good indicator of river health, and the health of everything in it.

"And, they're pretty cool."

Wood turtles are listed as a vulnerable species in Nova Scotia, and at risk Canada-wide. Hann has been in the Annapolis River watershed all summer, looking in the riparian zones of the river and its tributaries - about 20 or 30 feet from the water's edge: "I've found one." Between 2005 and 2008, DNT found 75.

found a turtle, the plan would be to take it back to CARP's office for a 24-hour period. It would be weighed, measured, sexed, aged and then have a small radio transmitter epoxyed to its back. When the turtle is returned to the same place it was found, CARP can then track it. The one turtle it is watching this summer, "Little Earl," perhaps between 30 and 40 years old; is visited every week, and he seems to stick pretty close to the same territory.

"We know there are threats to the turtles, maybe from agricultural practices," Hann said, as an example to challenges to turtle habitat, "and there may be plans we could put in place to help."

After the search, Hann reports no wood turtles were found by the team: "but it's excellent habitat."

'Sparky' flies again

Malcolm Uhlman,
Greenwood Military Aviation
Museum

Vintage Wings of Canada from Gatineau, Quebec has a "flying museum" collection of 18 Second World War-era aircraft, including ones flown during the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan (BCATP) under the name "Yellow Wings." These pristine-condition aircraft are not displayed in a cosy hangar gathering dust, but are taken to the skies of Canada and shared with aviation enthusiasts.

Included in its mandate is to return to small airstrips across Canada once used for training aircrew from many parts of the world for the war effort. Yarmouth, Greenwood, Stanley, Debert, Shearwater and Sydney were such bases; a major part of the travelling show this year stopped at 14 Wing Greenwood July 27 with the Fleet Finch, deHavilland Tiger Moth, North American Harvard and the Fairchild Cornell.

To commemorate this community's involvement in the BCATP and the young men who enlisted for air training, some veterans were given a flight in one of these immaculate aircraft. Greenwood played host to and witnessed a 91-year-old-veteran, who first learned to fly in the Tiger Moth. Arthur "Sparky" Travers, born in Kildare Capes, PEI in 1921, enlisted in the Army Engineers in 1941 and transferred in December to the Royal Canadian Air Force as a pilot trainee. He first flew the deHavilland Tiger Moth in 1942 at Goderich and St. Thomas, Ontario, followed by the twin-engine Anson, which he flew as captain until 1945 at Valcartier, Quebec.

Art "Sparky" Travers with pilot Todd Lemieux after a memorable flight in the deHavilland Tiger Moth. M.Uhlman

Family friend and Greenwood Military Aviation Museum proponent Troy Kirkby, a Windsor business owner, contacted Yellow Wings and arranged a personal flight for Travers in the Tiger Moth, 70 years after his solo flight at Goderich. Todd Lemieux, a commercial pilot and Yellow Wings volunteer, flies the Tiger Moth, and accepted the honour of taking one of Canada's veterans up. Once they reached 500 feet, Lemieux gave the controls to Travers and sat back. In less than five minutes Travers recalled his training of 70 years ago and flew in complete control of the fragile vintage aircraft, Lemieux reported. The magneto switches are located near the front cockpit, so Travers was given the task of turning these on and off when instructed by Lemieux, piloting from the rear cockpit. On landing, Lemieux's instruction, "magnetos off," was followed instantly by Travers' reply: "magnetos off."

At Valcartier, Travers met and married a pretty nurse, Phyllis, and the couple reared six children. The Travers moved to Dartmouth in 1979, where Travers built a contracting and consulting firm. Almost retired, Travers and Phyllis now reside in Alberton, PEI near the family homestead at Kildare Capes, where he still flies with his son, Scott, and where he and Phyllis also have their summer cottage.

This fall, the Greenwood Military Aviation Museum will have its restored Anson on display in a new extension and will invite Travers for another trip down memory lane.

class, and our men and women need and deserve a leader in uniform who reflects and upholds that high standard. They have had that type of leadership to date, and I'm pleased to tell you that that will continue.

"Lieutenant-General Lawson is an exceptional, dynamic leader who brings a great deal of domestic, international and operational experience to the table. He has the respect of his peers, the admiration of his subordinates and our allies, and the complete confidence of both the prime minister and myself."

Mackay said Lawson is coming into the role at an important time for the Canadian Forces, through continued adjustment and defence transformation.

General Walt Natynczyk, Chief of the Defence Staff, congratulated Lawson on his appointment to succeed him.

"I know he will enjoy the support of great generals, admirals, officers and, equally, all the ranks, through to the most junior privates and ordinary seamen. It is an honour to serve Canada, the men and women in uniform and their families and to make a contribution for peace and security."

The prime minister thanked Natynczyk for his exemplary leadership since July 2008, and wished him the best in his future endeavours. Mackay called Natynczyk an "outstanding leader and champion for the Canadian Forces in every sense of the word."

"He has been extraordinarily effective, compassionate, and hands-on leader who has delivered for the Forces, and thanks in no small part to his commitment and dedication, the Canadian Forces have vaulted forward in their capabilities to defend Canada and its interests domestically and around the world. He has been particularly effective in promoting the interests of military families and our ill and injured."

The change of command ceremony will take place in the coming weeks.

Aikido is a modern martial art derived from the Samurai fighting techniques of ancient Japan. Aikido is comprised of many circular movements intended to redirect your attacker's energy resulting in very effective controls and throws. Aikido as a martial art is non-competitive and because we do not hold any tournaments or competitions, there is no travelling, no extra equipment and no tournament fees. Cooperation and harmony are more important than aggression. Timing and control are more important than strength. With the development of solid basics, Aikido provides a very powerful means of self-defence utilizing your attacker's energy.

Training in Aikido is founded upon the fundamental aspects of respect, honesty, dedication and friendship. Aikido develops healthy bodies and sound minds while improving attention, concentration and physical motor skills. Aikido training fosters confidence, cooperation and self-discipline.

Aikido was popularized by film star Steven Seagal in many of his movies and is one of the fastest growing martial arts in Canada.

Students will participate in an established program and may advance through the belts as they progress. Steve Nickerson, is a 5th Degree Black Belt whose international teaching licence and Black Belt certificate were issued directly from the world headquarters in Tokyo, Japan. Steve also holds qualifications in Edged Weapon Defence, Pressure Point Controls, Handcuffing and Defensive Tactics. Classes are based on the traditional curriculum used in Japan and are conducted in a very friendly atmosphere. Aikido is a fun and dynamic martial art suitable for the entire family.

We will be accepting new students for classes commencing in September 2012. To register and guarantee your place on the mats, please phone immediately, or register on our website.

Wash and go

Two of 14 Wing Greenwood's protective service branches – 31 Military Police Flight and Fire Services – teamed up August 23 to co-host a fundraising BBQ and car wash at the entrance to the base. At the end of the day, they raised $413.50 for each section's chosen charity: the Canadian Fallen Firefighter Foundation and the Military Police Fund for Blind Children.

Firefighters used the washing power of one of the station's trucks to do quick work.

The MPs manned the grill: Sergeant Ken Grosset flipped burgers, while Master Corporal Barry Oxford looked after the dogs.

Un été bien rempli

L'Association francophone de la Vallée (AFV) a organisé jusqu'à quatre activités par semaine cet été pour permettre à la communauté francophone de la région de Greenwood de profiter des vacances au maximum.

Au début juillet, une partie de soccer amicale est la première de près de vingt activités, dont la dernière aura été une journée film et pique-nique le 24 août. Ateliers de danse et de théâtre, sorties à la plage et à la piscine et visites au zoo, au musée et à la ferme se sont succédé toutes les semaines pour plaire à tous les goûts et contribuer à rendre cet été d'autant plus amusant et diversifié.

Parmi les activités qui ont eu le plus de succès cet été, on compte le tournoi de golf du 20 juillet, qui a attiré une vingtaine de golfeurs au terrain de golf Above Par pour un avant-midi de compétition amicale entre francophones, et la visite du zoo d'Oaklawn Farm qui, avec ses seize participants, a été très divertissante. De même, la série de trois ateliers de danse a permis à une douzaine de danseurs et danseuses en herbe de découvrir la danse folklorique acadienne, la danse contemporaine et le ballet classique, et deux ateliers de tir à l'arc pour débutant ont attiré plus de trente participants en tout. N'oublions pas non plus le nettoyage de la plage d'Harbourville qui a eu lieu le 15 juillet, la célébration de la fête de l'Acadie à la plage d'Aylesford Lake et l'après-midi sportif du 17 août qui ont tous été très amusants.

La fin de l'été n'annonce pas la fin des activités de l'AFV! Dans le but de promouvoir la langue française et la communauté francophone, l'AFV continuera d'offrir une variété d'activités tout au long de l'année scolaire. Gardez l'œil ouvert pour des cours d'informatiques, des ateliers de bricolage et plus encore à venir bientôt.

Get set for squash season

Don Lacroix, ZX Squash Club

The squash season is upon once again, and the 14 Wing Greenwood ZX squash club is looking forward to a new and exciting season.

For those of you who haven't tried the sport, all I can say is... "addictive." It's a great, all around sport that provides one of the best workouts you're ever going to get, with an emphasis on cardio, hand/eye co-ordination and speed. For those of you into cross-training (particularly hockey players), look no further.

Based on the positive feedback from last year, the club will continue league play again this season, with more information to come. We'd like to see more players from all age groups and fitness levels - and that includes the ladies. To that end, Janet MacLeod, one of the top female players in the province, is hoping to lead a ladies' clinic. We will have court time for novice players, with more experienced players on hand to teach you the basics.

For information on the ZX 2249 or loki2841@gmail.com. club, contact Don Lacroix, 341- See you on the courts!

Campers' charity work

Lake Pleasant Campers Club members have spent some of their summer time working on behalf of several community charities, under the umbrella of 14 Wing Greenwood's Wing Charities Fund. August 18, volunteers hosted the annual firemen's family breakfast, and the ladies from the Springfield United Baptist Church held a bake sale. It was an excellent event, with close to 300 people served breakfast, baked goods flying out the door and $468.20 also raised for the local church. The fire department will use the funds to support the installation of an oxygen tank filling system.

Level: Beginner

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Mary Wredenhagen,
GMFRC program associate

The use of personal information is often necessary for the provision of mandated services to Canadian Forces members and their families. The Director Military Family Services (DMFS) developed the Privacy Code for Military Family Services Program. This code contains 10 principles, which establish the standard under which Military Family Resource Centres collect and use personal information about CF members and their families, volunteers, staff, etc. It assists MFRCs in protecting the personal information provided and/ or collected.

Principle 4 - Limiting collection

The collection of personal information shall be limited to that which is necessary for the purposes identified by the MFRC. Information shall be collected by fair and lawful means.

Principle 5 - Limiting use, disclosure, and retention

Personal information shall not be used or disclosed for purposes other than those for which it was collected, except with the consent of the individual or as required by law. Personal information shall be retained only as long as necessary for the fulfillment of those purposes.

Code de protection des renseignements personnels à l'usage du Programme des services aux familles des militaires

Mary Wredenhagen,
Adjointe aux programmes
du CRFMG

L'utilisation de renseignements personnels est souvent nécessaire afin d'offrir les services prévus au mandat aux membres des Forces canadiennes et à leurs familles. Le Directeur des services aux familles des militaires (DSFM) a élaboré le Code de protection des renseignements personnels à l'usage du Programme des services aux familles des militaires. Ce code contient dix principes qui définissent les standards selon lesquels les Centres de ressources pour les familles militaires recueillent et utilisent les renseignements personnels des membres des FC et de leurs familles, des bénévoles, du personnel, etc. Il aide les CRFM à protéger les renseignements personnels qui sont fournis et/ou recueillis.

personnels qu'ils détiennent. Le directeur d'un CRFM aura la responsabilité de s'assurer que le CRFM respecte les principes qui suivent.

Principe 2 - Détermination des fins de la collecte des renseignements

Le CRFM doit déterminer les fins pour lesquelles des renseignements personnels sont recueillis, préalablement ou au moment de la collecte.

Principe 3 - Consentement

Toute personne doit être informée et consentir à toute collecte, utilisation ou communication de renseignements personnels qui la concernent, à moins qu'il ne soit pas approprié de le faire.

Principe 4 - Limites de la collecte

Le CRFM ne peut recueillir que les renseignements personnels nécessaires aux fins déterminées par lui et il doit procéder de façon honnête et licite.

Principe 5 - Limites de l'utilisation, de la communication et de la conservation

Les renseignements personnels ne doivent pas être utilisés ou communiqués à des fins autres que celles auxquelles ils ont été recueillis, à moins que la personne concernée n'y consente ou que la loi ne l'exige. On ne conservera les renseignements personnels qu'aussi longtemps que nécessaire pour l'atteinte des fins déterminées.

Principe 6 - Exactitude

Les renseignements personnels doivent être aussi exacts, complets et à jour que l'exigent les fins pour lesquelles ils sont utilisés.

Principe 7 - Mesures de

sécurité

Les renseignements personnels doivent être protégés au moyen de mesures de sécurité correspondant à leur degré de confidentialité.

Principe 8 - Transparence

Le CRFM doit mettre à la disposition de toute personne des renseignements précis sur ses politiques et ses pratiques concernant la gestion des renseignements personnels.

Principe 9 - Accès aux renseignements personnels

Un membre des FC, une

famille ou un tiers qui en fait la demande sera informé de l'existence, de l'utilisation et de la divulgation de renseignements personnels qui le ou la concernent, et il lui sera permis de les consulter. Une personne pourra contester l'exactitude et l'état complet des renseignements, et y faire apporter les corrections appropriées.

Principe 10 - Possibilité de porter plainte contre le non-respect des principes

Un membre des FC, une

famille ou un tiers doit être en mesure de se plaindre du non-respect des principes énoncés ci-dessus auprès du directeur d'un CRFM qui est responsable de leur respect par le CRFM.
