Museum set for year ahead

Malcolm Uhlman, Greenwood Military Aviation Museum Society

A reflective look back at 2018 accomplishments at the Greenwood Military Aviation Museum (GMAM) provides the footing for a busy 2019 ahead. Backed by many 14 Wing Greenwood sections, the GMAM's 70-some dedicated volunteers amassed an amazing 6,500 hours on work last year. The museum also clocked 22,689 visitors, not counting the hundreds who viewed the Air Park during off hours.

The museum's "flagship" education program, Flight Education, hosted eight Valley schools and their Grade 6 science of flight students for guided tours, capably led by 20-some veterans, civilian and Regular force volunteers. Over the 16 years of the program, the team has now toured over 8,000 students.

After four-and-a-half years and a much-anticipated roll-out from the workshop, the restored Piasecki/ Vertol H44 helicopter is the most-visible addition to the Air Park. Volunteers will add the rotor blades, striping, lettering and roundels.

The mid-upper turret on the Lancaster is now restored, along with the intricately manufactured fairing, with reinstallation on the mid-dorsal side of the Lanc to come. The tail turret is being rebuilt to original standards, to be reinstalled this summer.

The Bolingbroke/ Blenheim restoration is reaching a major milestone, with the reconstruction of the second wing nearing completion. With the installation of the new, large access door in the museum extension, both completely-restored wings and the large center section wing box can be moved into the extension, with the subsequent assembly with completed fuselage and cockpit sections. A second Mercury XV engine has been obtained

Community remembrance

Royal Canadian Legion Ortona 69 marked the dedication of its new Berwick memorial April 11, with a parade, service and wreath laying event. Stormy weather April 9, the anniversary of the Battle of Arras and known as Vimy Ridge Day, shifted events two days. Sunny skies and participation from Berwick & District School, municipal, provincial and federal politicians; community organizations and the public welcomed the dedication. The monument is placed on Veterans' Drive, along the parade route used for Remembrance Day in recent years, as the Legion moved to the school to accommodate growing attendance. The Piasecki/ Vertol H44 Helicopter restoration was 90 per cent completed in 2018, enough to roll it out of the workshop and into the Greenwood Military Aviation Museum's Air Park - now home to 11 display aircraft.

Museum success...

...cover for later installation. The museum's research library contains a collection of materials on many aviation-related subjects, particularly on aircraft flown from Greenwood from 1942 to present day, as well as operations conducted by Greenwood squadrons overseas during the Second World War, between 1941 and 1945. A searchable, detailed listing of the library holdings may be accessed at gmam.ca. Finishing off the year, the latest museum aircraft, a C45 Expeditor aircraft, was rolled into the workshop to begin a volunteer restoration project.

In a few years, this will become the 11th aircraft in the museum's Air Park and the 14th in the total collection. The museum is an exciting site to visit - or revisit - in 2019. Admission is free, with donations gratefully accepted. Follow museum activities at gmam.ca and Facebook.com/gmam.ca. →

Snowbirds to perform in Debert June 19

Atlantic Canada will see a Canadian Forces Snowbirds' performance this year. An agreement has been struck between the Truro Flying Club and the Nova Scotia International Air Show Association (NSIASA) to produce a military air show featuring the Snowbirds June 19. It will be the first ever performance by the Snowbirds at the Debert Airport, a former British Commonwealth Air Training Plan Base from the Second World War and the centre of general aviation flying training in Nova Scotia today. "Truro Flying Club is 'over the moon' excited to have the CF Snowbirds perform in Debert. This is a great opportunity to showcase a spectacular aerial performance and put the Debert airport on the map. It's a first and, with the fan support, I'm sure it won't be the last," says airport manager Denyse Sibley. The NSIASA will produce the event, the ninth different location for the group since 2008. "Our air show organizing team has gained valuable expertise in producing shows at different locations and we are confident the Truro Flying Club and host community will be excellent partners," says Colin Stephenson, executive director. Additional aircraft will be invited to attend as static and flying displays.

Steel Spirit show seeks military artists

The Steel Spirit art gallery is coming to Annapolis Royal June 1 to 6, showcasing artwork submissions done entirely by military and first responders (serving or retired). The Steel Spirit galleries are a platform of recognition and thanks for the work that they do. Steel Spirit project founder Barbara Brown welcomes a wide range of art submissions (leatherwork, woodwork, photography, metalwork, paintings, drawings, etc). All art experience levels are welcome. The exhibit will be hosted at the Round Hill Studio, 280 St-George Street, Annapolis Royal. Participation in the gallery and the community reception for the gallery is free. Contact barbara@be-art.ca by April 30 if you are interested in being involved or finding out more. Visit thesteelspirit.ca for information. →

Greenwood lawyer recognizes opportunity to serve, learn as new 14 AMS honorary colonel

Sara White, Managing editor

David Proudfoot now has two ethical codes to abide by: the legal profession requires him to provide services ethically, to all; his appointment March 21 as honorary colonel for 14 Air Maintenance Squadron came with a requirement to read the Canadian Armed Forces code of ethics.

"I did: it's my duty," Proudfoot said during his investiture at the Annapolis Mess. "It says, at all times and in all places, the CAF will respect human dignity."

Proudfoot said the honour of this new role is a credit to many others: his father, who volunteered for Second World War service in 1943 after hearing of Holocaust atrocities; and the military members he himself now joins in the honorary role. "All of you - if you are not here, I'm not here. And, it goes deeper than that. It's that commitment that means we can go to work, vote, live and be free: because you guys go to work every day. This is my opportunity to give credit to the people who raised me up, and showed me you rise when you lift others; and, to be an advocate for you." Squadron commander Lieutenant-Colonel Amy Tsai-Lamoureux welcomed Proudfoot to 14 AMS, a 25-year-old aircraft maintenance squadron which stands shoulder-to-shoulder with aircrews to answer the call and serve the country. "We believe in service. The role of honorary colonel is to serve as a bridge between the squadron and the local community, and it's only as meaningful as we want it to be. I challenge you all to work alongside Honorary Colonel Proudfoot and strengthen the ties between our squadron and the community." →

Dedication to duty 14 Wing members of RCAF's first Public Duties contingent recognized

Sara White,
Managing editor

Months of drill, attention to detail and Public Duties guarding Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II and her royal residences in Great Britain were recognized March 13 at 14 Wing Greenwood.

Members from the wing part of the Royal Canadian Air Force 120-member contingent taking up those duties June 15 to July 17, 2018, received letters of appreciation from Major-General Christian Drouin, commander, 1 Canadian Air Division. 14 Wing Commander Colonel Mike Adamson made the presentations at wing headquarters, joking at the start if perhaps he should ask for a demonstration.

"The amount of drill knowledge and acumen here is actually making me a little nervous," he said, well aware of a half-dozen change of command ceremonies and parades - his included - scheduled later this summer.

Corporal T. Matheson, 14 Wing Imaging

"This was the first time in our 94-year history as an RCAF to do Public Duties and, by all accounts, you killed it. I understand it was - mostly - an enjoyable experience; one each and every one of you is very proud to have had the opportunity to do. The fact you as a group represent four or five different units from our wing truly reinforces our 'Operate as One' philosophy, and the chief and I are extremely proud of all of you." Drouin thanked all members of the RCAF UK Public Duties ATF for "exceptional dedication and commitment," which included weeks of training on 17 Wing's parade square in Winnipeg from May to its departure.

"This led to the execution of Public Duties to the highest of standards on an international stage that brought credit and recognition to not only the RCAF but to the Canadian Armed Forces and Canada as well," Drouin said. "I couldn't be prouder."

The RCAF contingent marched through the gates of Buckingham Palace June 25 for the first time, following a successful "fit-for-role" inspection June 21 at the Wellington Barracks, conducted by the United Kingdom Household Division. It guarded Buckingham Palace, St. James Palace, Windsor Castle and the Tower of London, where the Crown Jewels are located. At the Tower of London, the ATF participated in the 700-year-old Ceremony of the Keys, as the main gates are locked for the night. The ATF participated in a Freedom of the City Parade in Folkestone, a community where, in 1915, an estimated 40,000 Canadians embarked for France. The RCAF Band further performed at the Horse Guards Palace, as part of the Royal Air Force 100th anniversary celebrations July 10.

Recipients included Warrant Officer C.J. Campbell, Wing Commander branch; Warrant Officer A.M. Montreuil, 14 Mission Support Squadron; Warrant Officer H.P.F. Mooney, 14 Air Maintenance Squadron; Sergeant A.S.G. Vizino, Wing Commander branch; Master Corporal J.C. Poirier, 14 AMS; Master Corporal R.H. Russell, 405 Squadron; Corporal (D)H.A. Bennett (absent), 413 Squadron; Corporal (J)M.S. Pacquette, 14 AMS; Corporal D.J. Wallace, 14 AMS; and Private E.J. Moreau, 14 Operations Support Squadron. →

Wood ends 30-year RCAF career

Warrant Officer Stacy Wood, CD, after 30 years of loyal and dedicated to the Royal Canadian Air Force, will retire April 7. A formal depart with dignity event was held at 14 Wing Greenwood's Annapolis Mess March 15.

Wood joined the Canadian Armed Forces in March 1989 as an air force POET (a general electronics technician). Following the completion of basic training in Cornwallis, Nova Scotia, he was off to Kingston, Ontario, to begin his POET training, where his actual trade would be decided. While on course, he was assigned to become a land electrical generator technician and told to trade in his blues for army greens; he quickly opted to be reassigned as a safety systems tech to remain in the air force. After his safety systems training in Borden, he was posted to 442 Squadron, 19 Wing Comox in March 1990, where he stayed for 10 years working on both the Buffalo and Labrador fleets. He was then posted to 413 Squadron, 14 Wing Greenwood in July 2000 for 13 years and worked on the Hercules and Labrador. He was promoted to master corporal in June 2006, and then to sergeant in June 2009. He was on several deployments, including multiple major search and rescue operations on both Canadian coasts, Box Top, Eastern Europe and Op Caravan in Central Africa. He was promoted to warrant of-

Ex Maroon Chef Military exercise spices things up

Leading Seaman Louis-Philippe Dube, 14 Wing Imaging

Exercise Maroon Chef, the hottest military exercise in the Annapolis Valley, paired up culinary students from the Nova Scotia Community College (NSCC) with Canadian Armed Forces (CAF) cooks. Kitchens were sizzlin' April 8 at 5th Canadian Division Support Base Detachment Aldershot.

Things didn't take long to heat up as the teams battled it out for VIP judges Bill Mills, mayor of Truro; Peter Dewar, culinary instructor at NSCC; Colonel Keith Osmond, commander of Base Gaagetown; Chief Petty Officer 1st Class (retired) Blair King, a former military cook; and Gary Chin, executive sous chef at Hotel Halifax.

Each team included a CAF Reserve cook and a student from NSCC's culinary arts program. A "black box" cooking demonstration, similar to those on popular television cooking shows, forced the cooks to prepare gourmet dishes with surprise ingredients in a time crunch - all in a field kitchen.

The top team was rewarded with their name on the Chief Warrant Officer Hubert Reginald Johnson Trophy. Johnson joined the Canadian Army Reserve as a cook in 1949 and went on to become the first black chief warrant officer in the Canadian Armed Forces.

"I am participating to Maroon Chef for the fun, and I love a black box challenge," said Dean Li, NSCC culinary student and winner of the Ex Maroon Chef 19 competition.

The exercise is designed to showcase military cooking skills and raise awareness about the opportunities available to those who may be interested in a career as a cook within the CAF. The CAF recently announced a Regular Force signing bonus for those who have completed a recognized culinary course and have at least 4,000 hours of practical cooking experience. New recruits may be entitled to an allowance of either $10,000 or $20,000 ($20,000 for those applicants with journeyman cooks papers, Red Seal or provincial certification). →

Change of command sign of change, care within CFHS service

Sara White, Managing editor

A change of command ceremony March 14 at 26/27 Canadian Forces Health Services Group at 14 Wing Greenwood typified much of what life in the Canadian Armed Forces can be like.

Major Rob Warren, who took command just last year, deploys within weeks to operations in Mali. Lieutenant-Colonel Dave McLean was technically on leave, and he thanked his wife for spending her birthday with him at the event. He must complete a handover at his Halifax workplace before he can join the 26/27 CFHS team in Greenwood later this spring. McLean also thanked Reg, his Halifax neighbour and a front row guest at the change of command, for taking on some of the day-to-day support of his family and home while he commutes to Greenwood on IR (integrated relocation) to support his wife's career path.

"This was a bit of a 'flash to bang drama,'" McLean said. "There was always the rumour I'd be coming to Greenwood - but not on two weeks' notice!"

He reassure 14 Wing-based CFHS personnel he is looking forward to the post: "I'm a clinic guy, I asked to come here. I'll give you all of my attention, and I'm looking forward to working on an air base. I'll do my best."

Warren thanked McLean for taking on his role, and thanked his team for their support - from Wing Commander Colonel Mike Adamson and base personnel to the range of clinicians and professionals at work in the section.

"I came in wanting to support the mission, and I hope I met your expectations," Warren said. "We had a tough couple of months here, and the wing came together with us and for us - making us truly part of the wing's motto, 'Operate as One.'

"This unit provides tremendous medical care, and you should be proud of the service you offer the wing. The care you provide is second to none."

Colonel Manon Asselin, commander of 4 Health Services Group, was the event's reviewing officer. She acknowledged the rapid change of command pace for the unit, and thanked both the outgoing and incoming commanding officers.

"Changes? Yes," she said, "but that's also happening across Canadian Forces Health Services as we look at command structure, the modernization of the primary care model, mental health and patient safety. We have no choice but to modernize our health system."

"At the unit level, the needs are different than anywhere else and we have to adapt to your reality, but it will take time. Together, we will reach the point of better

SAR crews busy with marine-based calls

March 28, just before 2 p.m., the Halifax Joint Rescue Coordination Centre tasked a 14 Wing Greenwood Cormorant helicopter with 413 (Transport and Rescue) Squadron to respond to a fishing vessel in distress near Hubbards, Nova Scotia. The helicopter was currently en route, but stood down shortly after the call-out.

April 2, a 14 Wing Greenwood Hercules and Cormorant were both tasked just before 4 p.m., in flight, to provide assistance to an overturned boat emergency in the Gulf of Saint Lawrence, near Bouctouche, New Brunswick. The Cormorant extracted one individual in the water; with reports of a second missing. The Hercules returned to Greenwood just before 5 p.m., with the helicopter home just after 7:30 p.m.

April 8, at 4 p.m., Cormorant R910 was tasked to help in the search for an individual in the water near Bayfield, Nova Scotia, 95 nautical miles northeast of Halifax. Two other people had already been recovered from a cap-sized boat. Within minutes, though, the helicopter was stood down, as the individual being searched for was now ashore with emergency services.

April 9, just after 2 p.m., both the Hercules, coming from Stephenville, Newfoundland; and the Cormorant, coming in from Sydney; were tasked to assist a vessel 200 nautical miles southeast of, and steaming for, Sydney. A crew member on board was reporting an open fracture of the lower leg and needed to be extracted. By 4:30 p.m., a serviceability issue had been cited by the Cormorant; JRCC released both aircraft, the Cormorant to remain in place for repair and the Hercules onward to St. Johns. At the same time, a second Cormorant and Hercules, and their crews, were tasked to take over from Greenwood. Both were on scene at the fishing vessel just after 10 p.m., with the helicopter preparing for the medevac. The patient was transferred to Emergency Health Services in Sydney by 11 p.m., with both aircraft released.

April 10, around 8 a.m., a Hercules aircraft was tasked by JRCC to provide top cover for a 103 Squadron Cormorant helicopter extracting a French national from a French fishing vessel, approximately 200 nautical miles south of St. Johns. Just before 5 p.m., the Hercules was released, as the patient had been transferred to emergency responders ashore. It returned to Greenwood around 6 p.m. →
